Rhapsody in Blue by George Gershwin

This is a beautiful piece of music with lots of changes in pitch (highs and lows). Use your finger to follow the tune up and down as you listen to it.

Sensory ideas for listening to Rhapsody in Blue

- A sensory massage with movement up and down responding to the high and low notes in the music
- Use a parachute or scarf or sheet to lift and lower it according to the pitch of the music Respond to the fast and slow parts of the music with your movements
- Use paints or crayons to make swirly or dotty patterns to show what you hear
- Splash in water or dance to the music. Find the beat and the patterns, the highs and the lows and where the tempo changes and it speeds up or slows down or gets loud and quiet.
- What other versions of this music can you find?
